

Focus on Digital Literacy

Description

In this exciting event, we will broadly explore the meaning and practice of digital literacy in higher education. From staff skills to student induction, our speakers will cover a wide range of areas related to digital literacy. As well as presentations from our speakers, there will also be the opportunity to network over lunch and discuss ideas with your peers.

Sessions will include;

- Becky Collins (Coventry University Library): Creating an online induction game: staff experiences
- Daniel Villar-Onrubia (Disruptive Media Learning Lab) : Teaching and Learning with the Open Web
- Hannah Hickman: University of Worcester's experience with the digital capabilities tool
- Group discussion
- Richard Perkins and Catriona Matthews (University of Warwick) : Meeting the Challenge of Designing a Digital Literacy Programme with Library and Academic Staff

Target audience

Library staff who teach digital literacy to students or are interested in digital literacy and how this impacts on staff skill-sets.
